

HIGHLIGHTS

FRED VIGEANT
Vice President &
Chief Audience Officer

March is a month of transition. We'll wrap up some of the seasons that premiered this winter – Death in Paradise, Good Karma Hospital, Velvet, and Miss Fisher's Murder Mysteries – to make way for our springtime dramas later this month.

We'll see the return of Marie Antoinette on March 23, The Brokenwood Mysteries on March 27 and Call the Midwife on March 30. Wolf Hall also returns to our schedule, but more on that later.

First, big news — Prue Leith is coming to WITF! If you didn't follow The Great British Baking Show, then you are forgiven for not knowing who she is. And no, I'm not announcing new episodes of the popular baking show where she serves as a judge.

Prue is a popular restaurateur, cookbook author and now the host of a new food series, Prue Leith's Cotswold Kitchen. The first two episodes will appear in our broadcast schedule on March 3 at 9pm, but you'll need WITF Passport to catch all 10 episodes.

The series celebrates food, friendship and fun within the beautiful Cotswold region of England. This region may sound familiar to you — it's also where Father Brown takes place.

This month, we'll also celebrate Andrea Bocelli. Since winning the "newcomers" section of the prestigious Sanremo Music Festival in 1994, Andrea Bocelli went on to become one of the most successful classical crossover artists in popular music.

Great Performances: Andrea Bocelli 30th — The Celebration will showcase the tenor superstar's beloved 30-year repertoire on March 7 at 9pm. Jon Batiste, Sofia Carson, Lang Lang, Christian Nodal, Ed Sheeran, Nadine Sierra and Shania Twain are just a few of the superstars honoring Bocelli from the Teatro del Silenzio in Tuscany.

The Philadelphia Eleven
Premieres March 10 at 9p

I want to call out two special documentaries for Women's History Month produced by our talented colleagues at WHYY in Philadelphia and WPSU in State College.

First up from WHYY, The Philadelphia Eleven introduces trailblazers who challenged the very essence of patriarchy within Christendom and successfully created a blueprint for lasting institutional change. The Philadelphia Eleven airs March 10 at 9pm.

Then, on March 24 at 9pm, you can watch The Chance to Wrestle from WPSU. Girls are stepping onto the mat in record numbers, making wrestling the fastest-growing high school sport in the country. This film explores Pennsylvania's deep wrestling roots and highlights the passion and determination of female wrestlers trying to find their footing in a historically male-dominated sport.

Students from McCaskey High School in Lancaster are highlighted in this fantastic documentary...you won't want to miss it.

Wolf Hall returns on March 23 at 9pm with Wolf Hall: The Mirror and the Light. We replayed the original drama series this past fall, but you can also access it on-demand through WITF Passport.

This adaptation of Hilary Mantel's trilogy takes place in 1536 and follows Thomas Cromwell's (Mark Rylance) last four years of life serving as chief minister to Henry VIII (Damian Lewis).

The trailer to this series gives me chills every time I see it. It's worth noting that Kate Phillips reprises her role as Jane Seymour on Wolf Hall. We've gotten to know this actress as Eliza Scarlet on Miss Scarlet, but Wolf Hall was her first major television role. Save that for the next time you play Trivial Pursuit!

See Brit Floyd LIVE
at the Giant Center!

Brit Floyd returns to Hershey on their Wish You Were Here 50th Anniversary Tour May 9! Make your gift of support to WITF and choose your tickets as a thank-you gift at witf.org/ticketinfo.
